

HYBRID WORK POLICY

Our hybrid work policy allows employees to work from home with specific terms and conditions. Please refer to the policy guidelines and advisory for work.

All the employees have to mandatorily follow the mode of work as decided by the Management, which can change anytime in the future as per project requirements/any other reason.

- The company reserves the right to allow work from home or ask the team members to come to the office to work. The company also reserves the right to revoke WFH facility of individual team members or specific teams. No discussions or arguments would be entertained in this matter.
- Primary requirements for working from home include infrastructure, required network bandwidth, isolated/dedicated workplace at home, adequate power backup to address electrical outages, etc. If any employee does not have these facilities, they would be mandatorily required to work from the office.
- Employees who are working from home would not be allotted a dedicated workspace at the office. The company would be maintaining a common workplace to be shared between such team members.
- Application for switching to work from office from work from home can be made directly through email to the HR department.
- A hybrid work model doesn't mean employees split or adjust their time if working remotely unless permitted. Employees need to inform the team if they step away from the desk. IRM's should try for maximum overlap between team members. Lunch breaks and short breaks should be synchronized.
- Team members are expected to be available on all the official communication channels during working hours. Any irregularities in this would not be entertained and their WFH facility will be revoked with immediate effect.
- Some projects might have specific needs and require mandatory work from the office. Team members working on those specific projects may be called to work from the office.
- For team members whose nature of work needs multiple or specific devices to work would be required to work from office.
- Project Leads and IRM's are requested to maintain strict discipline among their respective teams in this regard and notify the defaulting team members to the management. Team meetings should be in video mode instead of just audio calls.
- The reporting center for any administrative and support purposes would be Indore office only. No doorstep facility would be provided to the team members for any such purposes.
- The policy would be reviewed periodically, and the Company reserves all the rights to make any amendments to this policy as and when deemed fit.
- If any employee resigns, it is mandatory for the employee to serve a stipulated notice period from Work from Office mode only.
